The Washington and Lee Game

College

In case you have forgotten or never learned how to play College, the editor¹ has jotted down a few memories to orient you in spending your time, money and talents at the game.

The goal of College is to graduate. This is accomplished by accumulating 40 academic points and 40 social points. Accumulation of academic points occurs by passing Examinations, rolling over Midterms, and chance. Accumulation of social points occurs by drinking, fighting, barking, snorting, and other activities determined socially acceptable by one's peers.⁵

Movement in College occurs by luck, roll of the die, and following the instructions. Each year begins with Matriculation, proceeds through limited space, and ends by passing Examinations. When passing Examinations, one moves around unlimited space to complete a turn. When in unlimited space, one on his next turn returns to the Matriculation square of one's social and academic status.⁵

If these instructions have not clarified how one plays College proceed to Freshman Camp (on the fourth page of the game) for further incomplete instructions, otherwise choose a Token and begin the episodes College.

Freshman Camp

This page is dedicated to those who are confused with the College experience. The following set of instructions should aid this great majority in the playing of College.

The first thing any Freshman should know is how to move around. Movement occurs by the roll of the die, and everyone begins at the Matriculation squares. If you have 20 points or less you are restricted to year 1 (i.e. 1st); 40 points or less year 2 (i.e. 2nd); 60 points or less year 3 (i.e. 3rd); and 80 points or less year 4 (i.e. 4th). Movement is restricted to limited space (i.e. those squares within the circle and not on the circle) unless sent to unlimited space (i.e. those squares on the circle) by instructions on a card, instructions on a square, or to finish a turn.

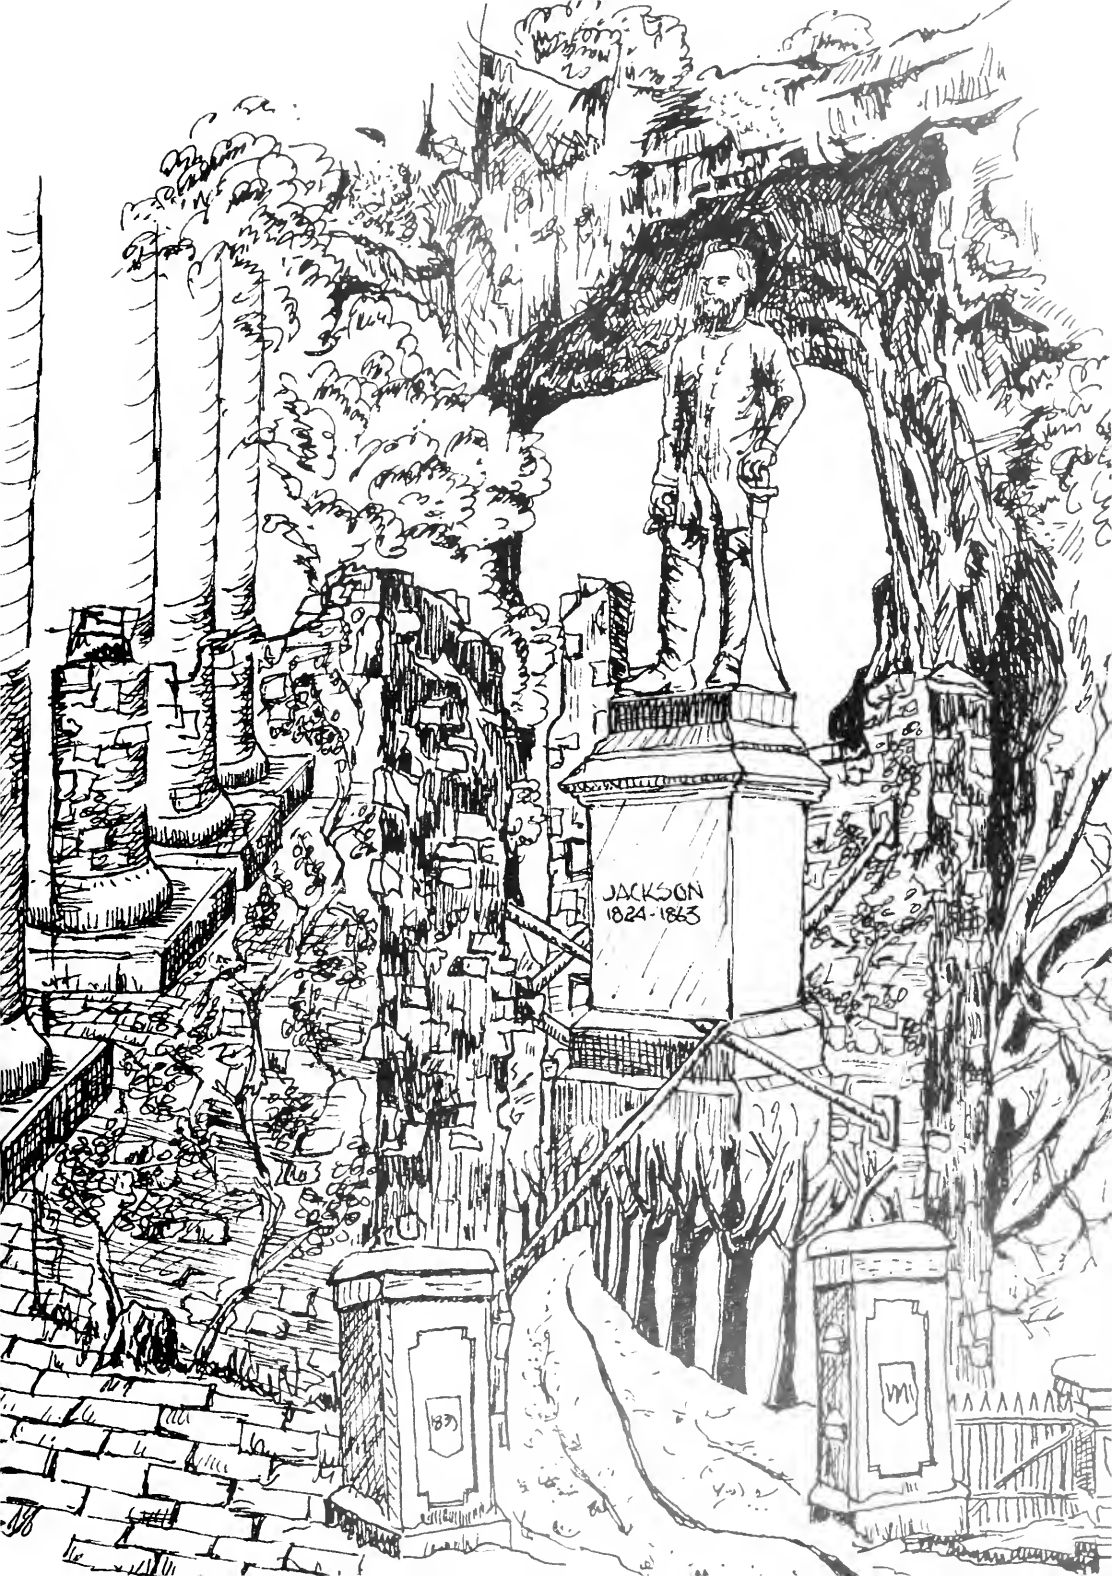

When passing an Examination square players must finish their turn by travelling in either direction in unlimited space. When in unlimited space, unless in the Infirmary, on one's next turn one proceeds to the Matriculation space your points qualify you for and then proceeds from there. When one comes to an intersection in limited space just continue in the year you are in unless you have enough points to be in the year you are crossing.

Other helpful instructions to the Freshman at College are to take turns with one's class mates and to remember that graduation occurs upon accumulation of 40 academic points and 40 social points. Also when you land on a square (which hopefully you will always do) do what the instructions tell you, and when you land on a Drop-Add, Pass-Fail, Weak, or Weekend square draw the appropriate cards which are included in the back of the book.

Two additional reminders — be sure and read the four sets of instructions on the game board, and be sure and pick a token to represent you in your four years of College.

Possible Tokens of College according to Major interest.

Motion — Sickness grain fans worship at the trash cans.
Climbin' to our higher lands —
wet, cold 'n red hands.

Try to dance?! — I feel like the circles without hesitations.

But some lose our way when nature's chasin'. (That feels great too)

The big brick houses walk on the wind.
And a friend asks me where

Said: "I feel insane.
Got grain on the brain."

Mongolian Minks

Basically a social organization with an anti-social bias, the Mongolian Minks were founded on the shores of Mesopotamia by Alexander the Great after the famous battle of Euphrates.

Ranking with the national orders of Phi Beta Kappa and ODK, the Minks have long represented a social grace which is unequalled on the campus.

The Student Association For Black Unity exists to help fulfill the needs of the black student at Washington and Lee University. It is to help the black student maintain his identity and to be his liason with the University, the Lexington community, and the various black student unions in Virginia. SABU is dedicated to presenting the different aspects of Black culture to the W & L community. SABU also aids and advises the administration in recruiting, admitting, orienting, educating, and socially guiding the black student.

During the year SABU, under the leadership of its president Eugene Perry formulated the plans and wrote the constitution for the Black Student Alliance of Virginia (BSAVa.). The first conference of BSAVa. was held at Washington and Lee on November 16, 1974. SABU also worked with the NAACP, the Boys Club, and a number of churches in the community. The highlight of the year was Black Awareness Week when a number of prominent black speakers and a nationally known choir were brought to the campus.

Black Awareness Week

Black Awareness Week is held annually to project the ideas and feelings of blacks toward America and to give examples of the contributions that blacks have made and are continuing to make to society. Black Awareness Week also gives students at W&L an opportunity to exchange ideas with prominent blacks who have had some of the same experiences.

To show the different aspects of the black man and his culture, SABU prepared a comprehensive week of events. Dr. David Shannon — Pittsburg Theological Seminary, spoke on "Black Religious Experience"; Sam Proctor — Dean of Graduate Education Rutgers University, discussed "Black Educational Experience;" and The Reverend Wyatt T. Walker, Canaan Baptist Church, evaluated "Contributions of the Black Man to American Society." Also present for the event was Dr. Charles Henry, Asst. Commissioner of the Big Ten, and the Virginia Union University Choir. The week was topped off by a formal dance — "The Black Ball."

Mr. Webster's definition of fraternity is sprinkled with words like formal, common, and same, but there is nothing about Delts that fit any of these. We party, get drunk, get wild even; and we book, we cram, sometimes even prepare for a course, and we jock it up. We do not pretend to like everything we do, yet we invariably do like most of what we do. Through all of this, the one thing that remains certain is that we are individuals brought together under the social banner of fraternity, that we try not to indulge in the absurdities of social facades, that we do offend each other and certainly commend each other, that we are Delts, and that we do care for each other.

Letter from the President

It is natural that at this time your thoughts are of the future and of the life that lies ahead of you. This book may be for you — as my Calyx has been for me — more treasured in years to come than it is now. Then it may be that you will find through it a way not merely of remembering the past with nostalgia but also a way of renewing the enthusiasms and idealism of your college years.

During freshman orientation it has been my habit to emphasize to incoming students how swiftly the time at Washington and Lee will go by. You are now in a position to appreciate the truth of that thought. To me it only seems yesterday that you were in that freshman group.

Those of us who live and work at your alma Mater send with you the hope that during our fleeting time together you have discovered something of the satisfaction which comes from the sharpened intellect and the disciplined mind. Our hope is also that you may take from here a heightened awareness of the timeless and noble ideals of integrity, tolerance and selfless concern of others.

You have shared with us, as have generations before, a generous portion of that youthful zest for life which tends to make optimists of us all. Thanks.
